JOHN CAMILLIERI
Dies Unexpectedly

John Camillieri, 67, of 127 Central Ave., who was stricken ill at his home shortly before 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, after doing some work in his yard, died before he could be removed to the hospital.

Pit Edward Packer of Tarrytown police rushed there on a report a man had fainted. He called back for the ambulance and a doctor also was called. The officer in the meantime administered first aid, but the doctor pronounced the man dead. The body was removed to the Coffey Funeral Home, 91 N. Broadway, where it is being held for a funeral on Tuesday morning with a solemn Requiem Mass in Immaculate Conception Church. Interment will be in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery.

Surviving Mr. Camillieri are his wife, Jennie Camillieri; two daughters, Anna Maria and Gina at the home address, and one brother and one sister in Sicily.

Born in Ragusa, Sicily, Nov. 17, 1896, a son of Camillieri and Giovanna Occhipinti. He came to the United States in 1912. In World War I, he served as a corporal in the U.S. Army. He was employed for years at Chevrolet and also had worked at Grasslands hospital. He later operated his own shoe repair business on Beekman Ave from which he retired about five years ago.

men—Christian H. Armbruster of Yonkers and Anthony B. Gioffre of Port Chester—voted against the bills. Both, reportedly, would be much relieved if a "party vote" should be called.

Since the defeat of the Rockefeller program a number of Republican legislators have said they were told by legislative leaders that they were "on your own" when they inquired about the Maryland Commission's proposals.

On this assurance some made commitments to vote against the measures. A "party vote" would, presumably, absolve them of such promises, they believe.

Mr. Hill's latest request was made in a telegram to Gov. Rockefeller in which he pointed out the effect a shut-down of the New Haven would have on the thousands of Westchester commuters who use it and on business in the county.

Similar proposals have been made by Democratic County Chairman William F. Luddy and by the Board of Supervisors.

A "stand-by" bill was sponsored in the regular session by Sen. Hunter Meghan of Mamaroneck and Assemblymen George E. Van Cott of Mount Vernon, and Mr. Gioffre.

However, their bill was killed in committee, reportedly because it called for a $1 million appropriation to finance operation by the state or some public agency in the event that the federal bankruptcy court ordered service discontinued.

There is no apparent leeway in the state budget for such an amount and, if there was, demands for more money for schools and other services would probably have more chance of legislative approval.

In addition, a bill designed to help the New Haven was passed at the regular session.

It would restore the railroad's tax exemptions in Westchester and New York City if the road agreed to purchase new commuter cars.

Tax exemptions were granted the New Haven, but were revoked when the court refused to approve a previous similar proposal that new equipment be purchased. The new legislation provides that New York and Connecticut contribute substantially to the repayment of the cost of the cars. The new equipment is to be financed by bonds issued by the Port of New York Authority.

and with two of Mr. Vetrano's political allies, Supervisor Francis X. O'Rourke, R-Eastchester, who is chairman of the Board of Supervisors, and Supervisor Alfred F. Sulla Jr., R-Harrison, in Albany shortly after Mr. Warren was designated by the county convention and Mr. Vetrano announced he would oppose Mr. Warren. Attending the meeting also was Mr. Hill.

A meeting was held Thursday night at Mr. Wilson's home, at which the agreement was worked out. Mr. Vetrano gave his final answer Saturday to Mr. Wilson in Mr. Wilson's home.

Mr. Wilson made a scant reference to the issue on Saturday night when he told a Mount Vernon GOP dinner at Glen Island Casino, New Rochelle, that there would be no countywide primary this year. He urged the party to work together for a victory in the fall and support the county ticket and the party choice at the national convention at San Francisco.

Insurgents May Get Help

Mr. Wilson said also last night that the discussions were confined solely to the Vetrano matter and at no time were there discussions of other prospective primary battles. There have been announced primary fights in the 2nd and 6th Assembly Districts. Some observers felt that Mr. Vetrano's withdrawal since the absence of countywide primary would not bring out party regulars.

There is still one Republican nomination to be made this year — that for county judge — but there wasn't any indication that Greenburgh would be recognized for that post. The leading contender for the post is Family Court Justice Robert Dempsey of Cortlandt. Gov. Rockefeller is expected to sign the new judgeship bill soon and make an appointment after July 1.

Whether Greenburgh would make a pitch for a place on the Family Court bench if a vacancy occurs or holds out for something better is to be seen.

The county GOP has not had a countywide primary in 18 years.

Representation Aim

Mr. Vetrano in his formal announcement said his basic objective in seeking the nomination in the June 2 primary "was to have the 84,000 residents of political subdivision in Westchester, represented in elective Greenburgh, the second largest office at the county level.

"Over the period of the past several weeks, some of my supporters and I have had several meetings with Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson and County Republican Chairman Theodore Hill, Jr., both of whom have expressed the hope that a countywide primary contest could be avoided.

"As a result of these discussions, Town Chairman Louis Russo and I are satisfied that Lt. Gov. Wilson and Mr. Hill are in sympathy with our views with respect to the validity of Greenburgh's claim for recognition and that they will use the best efforts of their offices to aid in the accomplishment of such recognition.

"Therefore, at the request of Lt. Gov. Wilson and County Chairman Hill, in both of whom I have complete faith, and in the interest of party harmony, I am requesting my supporters throughout the county to discontinue all efforts on my behalf and to join with me in supporting and to join with me in supporting all the Republican candidates for a complete victory in November.

"I am very grateful to the

Rail Talks Resuming, With Johnson Nearby

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP)—In virtual secrecy, rail management and labor representatives resume issue-by-issue bargaining today a stone's throw from the White House, knowing that failure to agree by April 25 could touch off a coast-to-coast strike.

The negotiators are working under a temporary truce effected by President Johnson and under the guidance of a presidentially arranged five-man team of special mediators. The sessions began at the White House and have moved across the street to the Executive Office Building so the President can pop in and otherwise make the two sides aware of his interest.

By arrangement, White House press secretary George Reedy is the sole source of information about the bargaining and except for word that issue-by-issue bargaining was under way and that both sides were showing "a sincere desire to settle" he has been reluctant to pass on details.

It would be an "utmost exercise in futility" to try to predict an outcome, Reedy said Sunday. He did venture the view that the mediators obviously must have felt some optimism when they decided to bring the opposing parties into the same conference room.

The mediators had been shuttling from one side to the other before bringing the rail executives and brotherhood chiefs face to face Sunday afternoon. The session continued into the night.

This last-ditch round of negotiation apparently is the only possible source of solution to the tangled work rules dispute. Johnson has exhausted all presidential actions provided by existing legislation and Congress is reluctant to get entangled in the subject again.

At his news conference Saturday, the President said he is not considering any new legislation that would take the dispute out of the hands of the carriers and the unions.

"I am not here to hurry collective bargaining," he said. "I am here to preserve it. I am prepared to carry on negotia-

2-Year Pact Ends Walkout On Bus Line

NEW YORK — Signing of a two-year contract ended a one-day strike yesterday which crippled bus service between the Westchester shore communities and the Bronx.

The agreement was hammered out by the West Fordham Transportation Corp. and Local 100 of the Transport Workers Union, CIO-AFL.

Operations on the bus line, which serves New Rochelle, Larchmont, Mamaroneck, Harrison, Rye and Port Chester and Stamford and Greenwich, Conn., were reportedly back to normal today after the shut down yesterday.

The walkout started at 12:01 a.m. yesterday and closed down normal Sunday operations. The firm usually runs 20 to 22 buses between the communities and the Bronx daily.

YONKERS—

When "something was wrong with the steering" a car mounted the center mall of the State Thruway at 50 miles per hour, catapulted clear of the guard rail, and bounced off the roof of an oncoming automobile before turning over three times.

Police reported that Rose K. Slose of 19 Darwood Place, Mount Vernon, was "not too seriously" injured although her car was a "total wreck."
